Dear Friends of String Theory,

Please consider joining us virtually via our Facebook page or in person this Saturday, September 26th at 7 pm for a free concert promoting our String Theory scholarship fund. Adult students and instructors will perform on stage at the Hygienic Art Park, a beautiful outdoor venue, for this socially distanced performance. We will be raising funds in the month of October through our fund at the link below.

We have a unique building with the capacity to provide safe, socially distanced, small group and private music lessons to our students. Our 1100 square foot open and airy studio is specially equipped to provide small groups up to 6 people with an opportunity to play together in real time. Please check out a short video tour of our space at the link below. We hope you will consider helping us put music students and music teachers together again.

The money we raise is kept in a fund with the Community Foundation of Eastern CT and is awarded to students attending the New London Public School System in collaboration with the New London Education Foundation. For every $1000 given, a student can attend an entire school year of small group lessons with highly qualified instructors for a full hour every week. That's just $100 per month, and $25 per week. All levels of contribution are very much appreciated, and it's so easy to give. Just use the link below to access our fund.

We hope you will support this new initiative, which will focus on giving students back some of the socialization they've lost without school this year. While our circumstances cannot be called normal, we hope to provide a shared space that the community can have confidence in as we find flexible and innovative ways to return to the music we love to play. Thank you very much for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Chris and Amy Leigh
